

INDIANA WILL NOT NAME FAIRBANKS

If the Senator Is Named for the Vice-Presidency the State Will Fall in Line, but Go No Further.

ATTITUDE OF DELEGATES IS PLAINLY STATED.

Office Is Not Sought and Only the Will of the Convention Will Be Considered—Silence the Watchword.

CHICAGO, June 13.—Congressman James A. Hemenway, of Indiana, made the most specific statement to-day that has yet been uttered regarding the desire of Senator Fairbanks for the Vice-Presidency.

"It will take the position," said Congressman Hemenway, "but he will not ask for it, nor will he express a desire for it. He does not think that there should be a scramble for the office, and he will only say that he will accept it after he has been elected for it."

"Does that mean that when the roll of States is called for the presentation of candidates for the Vice-Presidency, that Indiana will not present the name of Senator Fairbanks?"

"It means exactly that," said the Congressman. "Indiana will not present the name of Senator Fairbanks, or any other man, according to the present programme. If the Senator is nominated he will take the place, and that is all, and I might as well add right here that all attempts to get him to make a statement will be fruitless."

"He will say nothing either one way or the other, but if the Republican party desires to have him in the second place on the ticket, he will accept it after he has been chosen. That is as far as he will go, and that is as far as Indiana will go in pushing his candidacy. Of course the State takes its cue from the attitude of the Senator, and the situation I have described will continue until somebody is nominated for Vice-President."

JURY IN MURDER TRIAL DISAGREE

Wrangled 22 Hours Over Case of Josie White, Charged with Instigating the Killing of Husband by Her Brother.

After wrangling for more than twenty-two hours the jury in the trial of Mrs. Josie White, a negro, charged with murder in the first degree, in having instigated the killing of her husband, Edward, was discharged to-day by Justice Rich in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

The jury was discharged reluctantly by Justice Rich and only after the foreman and another member of the jury had protested that "if kept out for eternity they could not agree."

Eight of the jurors favored the conviction of Mrs. White for murder in the first degree. The other three insisted upon a verdict of a lesser degree. In discharging the jury Justice Rich expressed his astonishment at their failure to agree and told them that the mistake they had made was in expending so much time and money on the case, inasmuch as the evidence adduced must necessarily force the District Attorney to retry the woman.

Mrs. White was indicted with her brother, William Ross, for the murder of her husband, who had been the valet of Charles M. Schwab, ex-President of the Steel Trust. White was killed in his home, No. 25 West Fifty-third street, the afternoon of March 1, his skull being fractured with an axe by Ross. The latter was charged with manslaughter and is now awaiting sentence.

The evidence adduced on the trial of Mrs. White showed that her husband and she had been on bad terms for years. She asserted he had maltreated her, and on two occasions had so badly injured her that she had to be taken to the hospital. She wrote her brother, who lived in Philadelphia, and he came to New York.

Ross testified in his sister's behalf, saying that he had killed White in self-defense and Mrs. White knew nothing about it. The prosecution declared Mrs. White had instigated the murder and had procured her brother to commit the deed. Evidence of neighbors bore out this contention.

SHE KISSED THE OLD CAB HORSE

Unusual Scene in Front of Morningside Park When Beautiful Woman Demonstrated Her Affection for Dumb Animal.

FONDLED AND EMBRACED THE BEWILDERED BEAST.

Harlemites hastening home from the One Hundred and Tenth street "L" station last evening observed an unusual sight in front of Morningside Park.

In a cab drawn up alongside the curb sat a woman so handsomely gowned that her clothes would have caused the Harlem fames to turn on their searchlights of inspection.

The cab horse stood nibbling the grass, while the cabby stood looking at the woman, who was beautiful.

Pedestrians stopped to look at the sight. An artist sauntering along gazed in wonder as the woman, firmly supported by the cabby, stepped from the cab.

"By love!" he said, "that's a picture. She looks like she just stepped out of one of Lalor's paintings."

The woman's stepping, however, proved to be somewhat unsteady as she stumbled against the weary old cab horse.

The woman wore a big shovel-shaped poke bonnet, the very height of fashion. A loose lace coat, of black hung below the waist line showing through its fine design the elegant gray voile dress, the skirts of which clung to the woman's figure. Tiny high-heeled slippers completed the picture.

Kissed the Horse.

Finally the woman staggered to the horse's head and began to kiss it and fondle it without restraint.

"Oh, dear, what is the matter?" asked a nervous gray-haired woman of Patrick O'Brien, who had come over from Eighth avenue to give his two English bulldogs an outing.

"Has there been an accident?"

"Oh, can't say for certain about the accident, lady," replied Mr. O'Brien; "but I should say that the lady is terribly jugged."

"Is she an agent for the S. P. C. A.?" asked another woman, as the gray-gowned figure continued her embraces of the horse. "Has the cabby been mistreating the horse—big brute!"

"No, there's no trouble of that kind. I guess the horse is the only one in that bunch that ain't badly soaked."

People began to congregate, but the woman heeded not. Her handsome skirt dragged in the dust, but she continued her embraces of the bewildered cab horse.

Policeman Spoiled the Scene.

Bicycle Policeman Douglas was attracted by the crowd and he stopped in amazement. After allowing the woman to carry on her caresses for a few minutes until the sidewalk became blocked, he wrote up to the cabby and insisted upon him taking his fare home.

The cabby's number was taken but the woman refused to give her name. She said she was interested in animals and thought the horse looked tired and had tired her for the day just to give him a rest. She admitted having stopped a number of times since she left home, but it was only on account of the horse.

When the cabby finally succeeded, with the aid of the officer, in assuring the woman that she needed a rest from the horse, the cab was driven at a brisk jog down Central Park West.

The officer refused to give the name and address of his beautiful fare, who he said, had given him a twenty-dollar bill just as she stepped at Morningside Park and told him "to be gone to his horse."

AL ADAMS ASKS FOR FREEDOM

Ex-Policy King Crestfallen When His Contentment that Sentence Had Expired Was Not Immediately Acted on by Court.

NEW POINT RAISED IN HIS APPLICATION.

Jerome Opposes the Move Holding that Law Recently Effective Does Not Help Prisoner—Adams Looks Well.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 13.—With downcast eyes but a quick step, as though he felt that freedom was near, Al Adams, the former policy king of Manhattan, was led by two keepers from Sing Sing prison into the Supreme Court room here before Justice Keogh to-day, where argument was made for his release from Sing Sing on the ground that he had been illegally sentenced and is being illegally detained as a prisoner.

Adams's hair is much whiter than when he was first sentenced and there is quite a prison pallor upon his cheeks.

When asked how he felt he replied: "Oh, pretty well, thank you."

His lawyer, Abram S. Rose, of Kellogg & Rose, retained the hotel point that under the sentence imposed on Adams no one knows when his term of imprisonment expires, and on this ground his sentence to an indeterminate period was illegal, as twenty days before he was sentenced the law was changed so that indeterminate sentences should be without commutation.

Now the question raised is, when does Adams's sentence expire? It would close next January, but under the law Warden Johnson says he cannot release him then. The interest of the people was looked after by Assistant Attorney General Howard S. Gans, of District Attorney Jerome's staff, and he bitterly opposed the motion to release Adams.

A new question has been raised in the appeal as to whether Adams is legally held a prisoner. Lawyer Rose says that Adams has served his sentence and that the law was changed, and as he has suffered the penalty of the fine, he should be discharged.

"The law," said Mr. Rose, "requires that prisoners confined on indeterminate sentences, as the defendant was, shall be discharged only by the court of appeals," said Mr. Gans, "affirmed the conviction of the defendant on appeal. The fact that a year has elapsed and that the prison board has refused to parole Adams does not change the situation. Adams's sentence expires in October next."

During the argument when Lawyer Rose said Adams was illegally held the convicted man nodded his head in approval.

Can Resentence Him.

The Prosecuting Attorney in answer held that the judge who sentenced Adams made a mistake, all he had to do was to resentence him. The court of appeals, said Mr. Gans, "affirmed the conviction of the defendant on appeal. The fact that a year has elapsed and that the prison board has refused to parole Adams does not change the situation. Adams's sentence expires in October next."

Justice Keogh, after hearing argument, said that he would look carefully into the matter, as an entirely new question never raised before is at issue. Briefs are to be submitted next Wednesday.

Adams was much crestfallen because an immediate decision was not rendered by the Justice.

MARQUIS AN AUTO VICTIM.

PARIS, June 13.—The Marquis d'Aud, infret-Pasquier, son of the Duke d'Aud, father of the Duke of Brézille, Department of Eure-et-Loir, was the result of a motor-car accident. While running at the rate of fifty miles an hour a tire of his car burst, and the vehicle was overturned. The Marquis was hurled in the air and sustained internal injuries. He was born in 1875.

OLD WOMAN ENDS LIFE BY HANGING

Found Suspended by Clothes-line from Transom in Her Apartments—Ill Health Possible Cause of Suicide.

The body of Mrs. Sophia Thurmman, seventy-two years old, was found hanging from a transom in her apartments in the building at No. 209 West Sixty-fourth street to-day by the janitress of the building. The janitress cut the body down and called a policeman, who sent for an ambulance from Roosevelt Hospital. The hospital surgeon, Dr. Dubois, said the woman had been dead for several hours.

Mrs. Thurmman lived with her son William, a cleaner in one of the court buildings. He left for work at daylight and found his mother hanging from a chair, slipped a clothesline about her neck and fastened it to the transom. Neighbors say they know of no cause for the woman's act, other than that she was old and not in good health.

SHOCKED TO DEATH IN THE SUBWAY

Second Laborer in Two Days Killed by Contact with Feed Rail of Centre Street Trolley Line.

The second laborer in two days fatally shocked by the feed rail under the west tracks of the Centre street trolley line opposite the Brooklyn Bridge entrance while working on the masonry forming the roof to the subway met his death to-day.

The victim, Timothy Sullivan, thirty years old, of No. 224 East One Hundred and Ninth street, had been working the greater part of the morning with his back crouched only a foot below the deadly rail. He had been warned by Foreman Helms to use the utmost care in keeping from any contact with the rail. In fact, he had once one of the men who carried out the laborer who received a fatal shock Thursday afternoon. Notwithstanding these cautions he inadvertently hunched up his back against the rail.

As soon as he established a contact his clothes began to burn, and before any one could raise a hand to drag him from the rail he fell back on the masonry dead. His body was taken to the City Hall station by Policeman Henry Boylan.

The Degnon Contracting Company is in charge of the subway work under City Hall Park.

DROWNED BOY IDENTIFIED.

Victim Who Fell Into River Was Michael Massiello.

The body of a boy who fell into the East River last night at the foot of East Sixty-third street and was drowned was identified to-day as that of Michael Massiello, eight years old, of No. 23 East Sixty-third street.

WORKMAN KILLED ON PIER.

Man Struck by Piles Falling from Midair.

Richard Anderson, forty years old, of No. 246 Montgomery street, Jersey City, was killed at the foot of Twelfth street, Brooklyn, to-day, while hoisting piles for a new pier work.

The piles slipped from a chain while in midair and fell on Anderson. His brother Charles, who was working with him, was badly injured and taken to the Norwegian Hospital.

MISS JOSEPHINE MAYER, WHO IS TO WED MAN WHO SAVED HER LIFE.

WEDS GIRL WHOSE LIFE HE SAVED

Miss Josephine Mayer to Become the Bride To-Morrow of A. Alvinmeyer, Who Rescued Her from Drowning.

A. Alvinmeyer, a young musician and song writer of No. 122 West One Hundred and Eleventh street, will be married to-morrow to Miss Josephine Mayer, of No. 11 St. Nicholas avenue, whom he first met two years ago when he saved her from drowning at Asbury Park.

Miss Mayer is an exceedingly pretty woman. Mr. Alvinmeyer, though he had many friends and acquaintances who belonged to Miss Mayer's set, never met her until one summer day when he was called upon to save her life. He was a guest of the Coleman House, Asbury Park, and was sunning himself on the beach near the hotel, fully dressed, when he heard a cry from the breakers.

There were no life savers at hand and but few men in bathing in the water. Without even removing his coat he rushed into the breakers and swam for the spot where he had seen a coil of fair hair sink beneath the water.

Notwithstanding the lamper of his wet clothing he managed to secure her by the hair and tow her ashore to safety.

Miss Mayer rapidly recovered from her trying experience and soon for her rescuer to thank him, and it was in this meeting that the courtship began.

The marriage will be performed at the home of the bride, No. 11 St. Nicholas avenue. They will go at once to Asbury Park, which holds so many happy memories for them.

DR. DARLINGTON IN BUFFALO.

Health Commissioner at Meeting of Civil Service Commission.

Health Commissioner Darlington went to-day to attend the meeting of the State Civil Service Commission. He will present to that body his argument for the necessity of an increase in the number of employees in the Health Department.

Application for such an increase already has been presented to the local Civil Service Board and to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

Dr. Darlington is accompanied by Dr. Dr. Port Health Officer.

AUTO ACCIDENT PLEASED WIFE

Told Police It Served "Mr. Blake" Right for Taking Out Two Women and Not Taking Her with Him.

George Finlay, fifteen years old, of No. 450 West Forty-first street, is recovering in Roosevelt Hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident at Broadway and Forty-sixth street.

Finlay was shoving a pushcart when a big auto came down Broadway at a fast clip. It was a man and two women. Finlay and the pushcart were struck and hurled to the sidewalk, the auto continuing on down Broadway.

The machine narrowly escaped running into a big hole between the car tracks at Forty-fifth street. Policemen Rodman and Phelan chased it and finally caught it when a block in the traffic forced the chauffeur to bring it to a stop.

Finlay was taken to Roosevelt Hospital and the man was taken to the West Forty-seventh street station. He gave his name as Thomas Blake, a machinist, of No. 9 West Sixty-third street. The police believed the name to be fictitious. The women were not held but were asked for their names and addresses.

One of them said she was Mrs. Pearl Le Roy, but refused to give her address on the ground that she was suing for divorce and did not wish any notoriety from the automobile case.

The other woman said she was Mrs. Carl Paulsen, of No. 215 West Thirty-fourth street.

Blake's wife later appeared at the station and sent a note in to her husband. While waiting for an answer she said to the sergeant:

"Serves him right for going out riding with two women, and not taking me."

Finlay's injuries were later reported to be slight, and Blake was set free, a saloon-keeper putting up $500 cash bail for him.

LECTURED ON DRINK BUT WAS DRUNK

"For or Against?" Asked the Sergeant When Brown Described Himself as an Orator on the Liquor Question.

Louis Brown, thirty-eight years old, colored, who gave his occupation as that of a "lecturer on drink," was arrested last night at Twenty-sixth street and Fifth avenue, on a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct. Brown was standing on a barrel exhorting a crowd of about four hundred people when Wetzel made his appearance. The policeman says that he asked Brown if he had a license to preach and was insulted. He then placed the man under arrest.

When Brown said at the station-house that he was "a lecturer on drink" the sergeant asked:

"For or against?"

Brown made no answer. He said he was at No. 324 St. Mark's place,oklyn.

ROOSEVELT SEES HIS NEPHEW WED

President, with Family Party, Makes a Flying Trip to Hyde Park to Attend the Roosevelt-Robinson Wedding.

GOES DIRECT TO CHURCH FROM TRAIN FOR CEREMONY

Attends Reception and Leaves in the Afternoon for Attorney-General Knox's Home in Pennsylvania to Spend Sunday.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 13.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt were the guests of honor to-day at the wedding of Miss Helen Roosevelt and Theodora Douglas Robinson. The bride is a daughter of J. Roosevelt, who is a cousin of the President's, and the bridegroom a son of the President's sister, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, of New York, is his nephew.

Lieut. Robert M. Ferguson, a personal friend of the President, received the President and his party at the station, which was prettily decorated with flags and bunting. The President, Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Carew were driven rapidly to the picturesque little Episcopal church in the village, where the ceremony was performed.

The church was filled with guests when the Presidential party arrived, and as the guests of honor entered the assembled guests rose and remained standing until the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were seated.

The wedding ceremony was conducted by the Rev. A. T. Ashton, a friend of the Roosevelt family. The bride party was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Charles E. Adams, of Toledo, O. The bride was given away by her father.

The bridesmaids were Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the President; Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, his niece; Miss Caroline Drayton, Miss Mary McBeth, Miss Corine Douglas Robinson, Miss N. Wood and the Misses Wolvchyn White.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and several hundred other guests attended an elaborate reception to the young couple at the handsome country home of J. Roosevelt, about two miles from the village.

President Roosevelt and party left Hyde Park this afternoon for New York. They will pass Sunday as the guests of Attorney-General Knox at his country home near Valley Forge, Pa.
